Cal OES Activation Status

- The Cal OES State Operations Center (SOC) transitioned to Joint Field Office (JFO) operations with FEMA to support recovery operations.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

- An unseasonal low pressure system will be dropping southward out of the Pacific Northwest and into Northern California this evening. This will result in critical fire weather conditions from this evening through Sunday morning for portions of Del Norte, Humboldt, Siskiyou, Mendocino, Alameda, Amador, Butte, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Glenn, Lake, Marin, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Sacramento, Santa Clara, Shasta, Solano, Sonoma, Sutter, Tehama, Yolo, and Yuba Counties due to strong winds and low relative humidity. Potential impacts include downed trees and powerlines, power outages, and the possibility of fire starts and rapid fire growth.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Hurricane Joaquin, Atlantic Ocean – United States East Coast

- Hurricane Joaquin is a Category 4 Hurricane on the Saffir-Simpson Hurricane Wind Scale.
- As of 0900 hours PDT, Hurricane Joaquin was located approximately 210 miles northeast of San Salvador, Bahamas moving northeast at 16 mph. This motion is expected to continue through tonight with an increase in forward speed. A turn toward the north-northeast is forecast on Sunday. On the forecast track, the center of Joaquin will continue to move away from the Bahamas today, and pass west of Bermuda on Sunday. An Air Force Hurricane Hunter plane indicated that the maximum sustained winds have increased to near 155 mph with higher gusts. A gradual weakening is still anticipated during the next couple of days.
- Hurricane force winds extend out to 70 miles from the center and tropical storm force winds extend out to 205 miles from the center. The minimum central pressure is 27.55 inches.
- The Government of the Bahamas has discontinued all watches and warnings for the Bahamas and for the Turk and Caicos Islands. A Tropical Storm Warning is in effect for Bermuda. A Hurricane Watch is in effect for Bermuda.
- Joaquin is expected to produce additional rain accumulations of 2 to 5 inches over the Bahamas, eastern Cuba, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, and the Turks and Caicos Islands through today. Isolated maximum storm total amounts of 25 inches in central Bahamas are possible. Joaquin is expected to produce 3 to 5 inches of rainfall over Bermuda through Monday. Storm surge will raise water levels by as much as 6 to 12 feet above normal tide levels in the Bahamas; water levels should begin to subside this morning and later today.
- Swells are affecting much of the southeastern coast of the United States and will spread northward along the east coast of the United States through the weekend. Even though Joaquin is expected to pass well east of the coast of the United States, a prolonged period of elevated water levels and large waves will affect the mid-Atlantic region, causing significant beach and dune erosion with moderate coastal flooding likely.
- The track guidance is now in good agreement that Joaquin will move generally northeastward between the United States and Bermuda, with a short-lived northward turn in the 48-72 hour period. Eventually, the cyclone is expected to move into the westerlies and move quickly east-northeastward across the North Atlantic.
- In addition, very heavy rains, not associated with Joaquin, are expected to produce flooding over portions of the Atlantic coastal states.
- A State of Emergency remains in effect for SC, NC, VA, and NJ but has been rescinded for 8 of the 23 counties in MD. The Virginia National Guard has authorized up to 800 members for response operations in anticipation of severe weather.
- The FEMA National Watch Center remains at Enhanced Watch (24/7). All previously deployed National and Regional Incident Management Assistance Teams have been directed to demobilize and return to home station. FEMA Logistics Incident Support Base teams remain deployed to MA, NC, and NJ. There are no known impacts to nationally significant critical infrastructure.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A few showers are possible this weekend as a weak cold front moves southward across the area. Winds will increase and become gusty this afternoon and tonight. The highest gusts will occur across higher elevations. Winds will diminish rapidly on Sunday.

Medford Weather:

Strong winds today in response to an unusually cold fast moving closed upper low that will track southward across Oregon and Northern California. Temperatures will be 10 to 15 degrees cooler with a slight chance of showers. There will also be weak instability with the slight chance of thunderstorms in Modoc County. Increasingly drier and weaker easterly flow will persist into Sunday as temperatures rebound to above normal. A modest amount of additional warming is expected on Monday with the ridge continuing to build inland and a coastal thermal trough moving inland. The pattern for Tuesday through Friday will be a series of disturbances in a southwest to west flow aloft moving over the top of the ridge brushing past the forecast area.

Reno Weather:

Low pressure will move into northern and central California tonight and Sunday, bringing additional shower and isolated thunderstorm activity to northeast California and western Nevada. A few inches of snow are possible for Mono County above 9000 feet on Sunday. Afternoon temperatures will remain near average through Monday before rising to above average by the middle of next week.

San Francisco Weather:

An unseasonably strong and fast moving cold front will reach the Bay Area by this evening. It will bring a variety of weather with strong winds across the North and East Bay Hills while showers will be possible around Monterey Bay with cooler temperatures region wide. Winds will ease by Sunday morning as the low drops into Southern California. Skies will clear and a warming trend will start as early as Sunday afternoon. Latest long range models now build high pressure through next week with a general warming trend and dry weather.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

A vigorous low pressure system will bring cooler weather, windy conditions, and a chance of showers and thunderstorms this weekend. Showers will linger into Monday over the Sierra Nevada south of Highway 50.

Hanford Weather:

A dry northwesterly flow will reside over central California today with temperatures warming to seasonable levels this afternoon. A storm system originating in western Canada will track southward and bring precipitation and much cooler temperatures Sunday through Monday. Dry weather will return Tuesday and continue through next weekend as high pressure builds into California. Temperatures will warm to well above normal by Thursday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure aloft will keep a warm and dry air mass in place today, then a low pressure system will move over Southern California through Tuesday. A cooler and showery weather pattern will develop from tonight through Monday night. A warming trend will develop for late next week as offshore flow develops beneath high pressure aloft.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Dry weather will continue today. For Sunday, a low pressure system from the north will bring much cooler high temperatures along with numerous showers, decreasing Sunday night and Monday. For Wednesday into next weekend, dry with a warming trend as high pressure aloft strengthens.

Southeast California Weather:

A couple of low pressure systems will affect the western states the next few days. The first will be dry and lead to locally breezy conditions and cooler temperatures through today. The next system will bring additional cooling and increasing thunderstorm chances. Dry weather will return the latter half of next week. High temperatures on the lower deserts are forecast under 100 degrees the next seven days.
